Edison Blue Amberol Records
Domestic Popular Series
Vol. 9 (1781–1810)
A day of relaxation in June 1913 before Edison employees geared up for a busy fall season (EPM July 1913, p. 8).
Series Rationale: The Blue Amberols Worth Having

Thomas A. Edison, Inc. introduced the Blue Amberol cylinder in November 1912. With celluloid surfaces made quiet by the aniline dye that gave them their distinctive color, these well-recorded and durable pressings were rightly hailed as the epitome of Edison’s recording art. Blue Amberols comprised the longest-running and most extensive of any cylinder series—extending the commercial life of the cylinder format until 1929.

The U.S. domestic catalog began with number 1501 and concluded in June 1929 with number 5719—well over 4,100 titles released over nearly 17 years. Quality was high during the first two years of manufacture. Then to cut costs, Edison began dubbing Blue Amberols from Diamond Discs. Whereas most domestic releases through catalog number 2500 had been recorded directly to cylinder, most releases after 2500 were dubbed from discs. Three-quarters of all domestic Blue Amberols, more than 3,100 titles, were dubbed from discs. From an archival perspective these second-generation copies are eschewed in favor of the commercially-released first-generation discs from which they were dubbed—that is, when such discs are available. Between 1915 and 1929 Edison released approximately 360 domestic Blue Amberols from unissued discs. Today these performances survive only as Blue Amberols.

Other issues above catalog number 2500 are also of archival interest. As sales of both Edison discs and cylinders declined in the late 1920s and the cost of making new recordings became prohibitive, Edison padded its Blue Amberol catalog with more than 90 direct-to-cylinder performances made as early as 18 years before. Again, these recordings exist only on cylinder.

In short, one-third of the domestic Blue Amberol series (nearly 1,400 titles) exists only in the cylinder format. From an archival perspective, these are the Blue Amberols worth having, and these are the titles released in the Archeophone Archives Blue Amberol Domestic Popular Series.

Transfers and Restoration

Transfers of Blue Amberol cylinders in the Archeophone Archives are made to the highest technical standards. The surface of each cylinder is washed with liquid cleaning solution and polished with a microfiber cloth before playing. Surfaces free of fingerprints, dirt, dust, and other contaminants that plague the format yield the quietest transfers. The best among several styli is chosen to yield the most accurate transfer given the wear pattern in the groove and the condition of the pressing. Particular attention is paid to squaring the cylinders on the mandrel. Blue Amberols are notorious for bouncing off-center in relation to the axis of revolution—analogous to playing discs with off-center holes. The ear is very sensitive to this wow, and much attention is paid to minimizing distortion in the time domain.

The best archival practice is to transfer acoustic recordings “flat”—that is, without equalization in the playback chain—and this is how all transfers have been made. But as the acoustic recording process was anything but flat, flat playback is a terrible way to listen to acoustic recordings. After removing the thumps, clicks, pops, and crackle inherent in Blue Amberol pressings, we judiciously corrected the most glaring deficiencies and distortions in the original recording chain. Archeophone’s goal is to resurrect the life in these recordings that flat playback leaves buried.
Introduction to Blue Amberol Series, Vol. 9
COMMON BUT SCARCE

The selections in this volume may seem common—comic songs and skits, sentimental ballads, instrumental solos, band selections, and other fare for which Edison Records are known. Surprisingly, copies of many of these titles are anything but common.

In December 1914 the Edison factory in Orange NJ suffered a fire that wiped out its stock of cylinders and its ability to produce more. Upon rebuilding, less popular titles were dropped from the catalog—some of which had been available for only a few months. As our series progresses into titles released late in 1913 and throughout 1914, we find ourselves with fewer and fewer copies from which to choose. With increasing frequency, the best available copy of a record is of lesser quality than we have become accustomed to throughout this series.

It’s a subject for a longer exposition, but our efforts to restore these old records and present them in the quality you expect are aided by some of the newest and most powerful software. We have taken considerable measures in bringing them up to our standards. If we’re doing our job well you won’t even notice.

Archeophone Archives’ digital-only releases can be purchased at iTunes, Amazon, and Google Play. These album notes are free to everyone. Learn more about our new Archeophone Archives imprint at Archeophone Records, the Grammy-winning leader in historical reissues from the acoustic era of recording.

ARCHIVE ARTIFACTS

Original record slip for Blue Amberol no. 1795, “Dream of the Tyrolienne—Herd Girl’s Dream,” by the Venetian Instrumental Quartet.
Original record slip for Blue Amberol no. 1804, the rousing “On Parade Medley,” by the National Guard Fife and Drum Corps.
Steve Porter began recording in 1897. Manuel Romain and Will Oakland began their careers as minstrel men. And José Rocabruna played with the remarkable Jorda–Rocabruna Instrumental Quintet, whose “Monte Cristo” was featured on Vol. 8 of this series.
RELEASE INFORMATION

All the numbers in this volume (1781–1810) were released in the August 1913 List, when Edison ceased numbering its monthly lists.

The following selections were originally released as Edison four-minute wax Amberols. The master molds from the original recordings were used to make the corresponding Blue Amberols.

Essential reading:

Archeophone Archives is dedicated to issuing extensive runs of early sound recordings in digitally downloadable form. Like the CDs for which Archeophone Records is known, our digital downloads are carefully transferred from the best-available copies and meticulously restored to bring out the best-possible sound.

Our commitment to these critical details differentiates our releases from the free downloads available on the Internet. Archeophone Archives delivers the best sound from the best copies.

Our premiere endeavor, The Blue Amberol Domestic Popular Series, draws its recordings from the collection of David Giovannoni. The collection offers extensive runs of relatively common acoustic recordings in uncommonly nice condition. And it is highly curated. Each Blue Amberol is physically cleaned before it is aurally assessed; alternate takes are identified through A:B comparisons; the best copy of each take is identified; a second copy is retained when a quality duplicate is available; and digital transfers are made at archival-level resolution on state-of-the-art equipment.

The Giovannoni Collection makes its holdings available for historic CD and digital reissues, and to radio, television, and film productions. It is the first privately-held collection chosen by the Library of Congress for inclusion in its National Jukebox. And it is the primary source of choice for Archeophone Archives’ Blue Amberol Domestic Popular Series.

All selections are public domain.
